I believe that violent television programming has a deep and lasting impact on children. I don't believe that children under the age of 8 have the ability to clearly distinguish between reality and what they see on TV. I believe that violent television is unneccessary and only worsens and prolongs the amount of violence in the United States today.